

MESSAGE FROM THE GODDESS MOTHER

YOUR DIVINE DESTINY

My Beloved Children of Heart,

“Today is a grand day. Every day is a celebration of life. Life is a gift for us to explore pathways of new experiences. It is an opportunity to expand and grow into elevated consciousness.

Of course, your plans for expansion are designed by you. You are the orchestrator of each thought. Each thought leads to action or no action. However, the source of their projection is you.

You may feel as if your thoughts are not your own. And sometimes this is truth due to the nature of a history of living on a duality planet where much has been conditioned.

You have a rich history of your genetic lineage as well as the collective of humanity, as you share in this grand adventure of life on Earth. Agreements were made with great excitement well before you made your journey here.

And so here you are now living in this time of great advancements. Yes, you are awakening in a time of greater awareness, a time for beginning to recognize your truth.

Navigating through these times of change can be an interesting challenge. You may find it to be a bit uncomfortable in these new Earth energies. You may even feel unsure of your footing as things don't feel the same to you.

Change has always been a constant. All you have to do is observe the seasons of life to know this truth. Now more than ever you are beginning to realize that this is the way of things.

Change is a part of your divine nature. The passion for having more wonderment, more joy, a greater understanding comes from within you.

This passion propels you into taking steps onto pathways perhaps you have never dreamed possible before. When you look upon your past experiences with a reflective mind, you can begin to see how you have moved to new levels of experiences, which allow you to see beyond, the “what used to be” mentality.

You will begin to entertain new ideas, new perspectives and open to the idea of new thoughts and actions. This then allows you to feel into the potential of a new thought, a new choice, a new experience, a new reality.

Imagine if you master your thoughts. What if you purposely chose and fueled with a focus what you desire most to experience? What if you could achieve your dreams through pathways of self-discovery of what is possible, simply by choosing new thoughts with a focused purpose?

This is the same pathway taken by the many greater masters in the history of humanity. These are the masters you know about, such as St Germaine, Buddha, Mary, Jesus, St. Anne and many others.

They each walked a path of self-discovery. Then through that greater awareness, they began to develop their innate abilities. They learned to choose their thoughts of what was desired and with focus were able to create their dreams. They became great masters of thought and energy fulfilling their sacred purpose.

The same is possible for you. You have also been endowed with these same master abilities. It is merely a matter of having a greater awareness, and of learning the higher principles associated with these. Then with practice, you develop them as with any other gift, or talent innate to you.

Take for example how a child discovers an interest in painting. Perhaps through an activity at school or at home, they find that they really enjoy creating pictures.

With practice they become more proficient. Their paintings may start out simple but as they continue on practicing and enjoying this activity, they become more confident in their abilities.

They can now begin to challenge themselves to create even greater masterpieces.

It is a process of discovery, reflection, practice, and of focusing thoughts and energy. All this comes together to create the desired masterpieces, the realities of choice.

It is the same steps for any personal development on the path of mastery. It is a process of developing your divine gifts and abilities, your divine attributes. Many of these have been dormant waiting for your time of discovery.

Now with the new elevating energies of Earth, it is even easier to make these discoveries. Perhaps you feel a longing for something. Perhaps you are drawn to something of great interest.

You are being guided and prompted to feel these connections. These are little whispers from your heart, that part of you that knows your truth and that it is time to pursue these dreams held within your heart.

Take note of these as they are of great value and will lead you to a greater sense of self. They will guide you into experiencing the joy of a life fulfilled, living the dreams and passions of your heart.

Your true self is constantly lighting pathways of possibilities for your todays and your tomorrows. Following the light will be a great source of joy to you.

It all starts with noticing the whispers, entertaining new ideas and new thoughts. And then practicing choosing those higher thoughts and fueling them in confidence.

There are many tools offered to assist you on your path of mastery. You will be guided to what is your ideal when you choose thoughts that support that concept. It is that simple.

Becoming the consciously aware master that you are, developing your innate gifts and abilities and then directing energy to create your dreams is your deepest desire to achieve. You knew the time would come when you would be able to break free from the past stories of lesser value and begin to see the truth with greater clarity.

The elevating light of Earth dances and uplifts each with the opportunity to see the greater vision. The potential to know the greater value of self, that sweetness that is truly free to be and live whatever dreams and desires are held within the heart.

Now is the time to claim your destiny. To walk upon Earth as an enlightened being, to develop all those beautiful gifts of wonderment that you have been given.

It is your time to begin to create more of what you desire, letting go of lesser perceptions of self that really are not your truth. It is a time to play more, to dream more, to envision new and greater possibilities and potentials.

It is a time to dance to the music of your heart. To let go of beliefs and perceptions that create the illusion of you feeling or being less than who you really are.

It is time to recognize your divine truth, to accept the fullness of the gift of life in gratitude. It is time to explore the many possibilities you desire to experience.

It is time for you to know that you are a being of infinite love, of infinite potential. This is your time to be consciously fueling your divine destiny, your birthright, and to be that master of love that you truly are. Shaman.”

With great love,
Your Beloved Mother
